Reincarnation and karma

Hindus believe in reincarnation. This means that when a person dies their soul is reborn. The soul goes through a cycle of many different lives, one after the other.

A person can be reborn in many different forms: animal, insect or human. How they are reborn depends on how they lived their previous life. This is called karma. If a person lives a good life they will have good karma, but if they lead a bad life they will have bad karma.

Write five examples of things Hindus might think of as being bringers of bad karma.
